Customer Reviews

We just finished potty training our 22 month old daughter and this book was the one that worked the BEST for us. PROS (there are so many, so I'll just start from the beginning and move through the book)- First page there is a place to write your daughter's name, as in "This book belongs to..." My daughter can recognize her name and I wrote it with a sharpie in large capital letters in the space provided before giving her the book. When she opened it up and saw that her name was there, she was absolutely thrilled! This book is special just for her! Hooray!- The next page has a note to parents that tells you exactly how to use the book and the sticker chart that comes with it. This is really helpful.- It comes with it's OWN STICKER CHART AND STICKERS! Yes, you can make your own, and buy stickers. Yes you can buy a chart with stickers on for like $14+, but honestly, having it all in one place was AMAZING! We purchased the paperback version and it was less than $5! You can't get a better deal anywhere. And yes, some people don't want to use stickers and with some children stickers don't work. But there is only one place in the text that mentions "I get a star" and it's not in sticker form, so if your method eschews this kind of thing, you can just cut out the chart and stickers and put them aside and your child will never know that they're missing.----- More about the sticker chart - We used the stickers and the sticker chart. Honestly, even though my daughter really likes stickers, she is still too young to necessarily understand the concept of a sticker on a chart as a reward (22 months old). However, using the sticker chart was helpful in creating a visual display of her success.
